Frederick Knott's thriller is the story of Susy Henderson, a recently blinded newlywed who unwittingly possesses a doll filled with illicit drugs. Harry Roat, a brutal and sophisticated criminal, coerces two small-time thugs (Mike & Croker) into helping him con Susy into giving up the doll. A battle of wits ensues as Susy and the young girl upstairs (Gloria) launch a counterplot against the thieves. Set in 1960's London, the drama plays on the themes of darkness and light as Susy navigates through her sightless world, and the crooks signal each other with light through the Venetian blinds.
